

June 15, 2023

According to a February 2023 poll, 84 percent of the more than 1,100 child care and Pre-K Counts providers who responded indicated an ongoing staffing shortage. In total, these programs are down nearly 4,000 teachers, closing 1,600 classrooms and placing more than 38,000 children on waitlists.

Why does this matter?

For families with young children access to child care and Pre-K is a critical factor in their ability to go to work. Nearly 70 percent of all households with children younger than age 6 have all available adults in the workforce— that's over 537,000 households.

For all other business sectors, the early learning sector is the workforce behind the workforce. That means a staffing crisis in child care and Pre-K compounds the staffing crisis everywhere else. When families do not have early care and education they cannot go to work.

For all Pennsylvanians, when businesses aren't fully staffed or staff is unreliable, they cannot produce the goods or provide the service, creating shortages and increasing prices. So, whether you have young children or not, the labor shortage in the early care and education sector matters.

There is a solution. Staffing shortages in this sector are a result of unlivable wages. The average wage of a Pennsylvania child care teacher is less than $12.50/hour and 21 percent of the child care workforce relies upon Medicaid for their health care coverage and SNAP to put food on the table.

That's why we are urging you to directly invest in the early learning sector by implementing and funding a wage scale that will compete in today's labor market and recognizes the qualifications of the professionals doing the work.

Raising child care wages to ($15/hr. for HS diploma or GED), ($19/hr. for Associate Degree), and ($21/hr. for Bachelor's Degree or higher) would help this sector compete for new teachers and retain existing ones. Such a proposal would cost the commonwealth $430 million.

Additionally, the commonwealth should invest more resources in the Keystone STARS program to help compensate child care providers closer to the actual cost of providing these services that have reached a STAR 2, 3 or 4 level. Such an investment would help incentivize more programs to achieve higher levels of quality and assist with teacher wages.

Finally, additional resources should be available to boost the rates of Pre-K Counts and Head Start State Supplemental Assistance programs to help offset inflationary pressures and staffing shortages. Also, the Pennsylvania Department of Education should ensure that the Pre-K Counts rebidding process occurs without service delivery cuts to current county slot allocations, since all Pennsylvania counties have unmet need for high quality, publicly-funded pre-k.

These investments will stop the classroom and program closures that are preventing tens of thousands of families' from accessing the care they need for their child in order to work. Please make access to early care and education a priority so the workforce behind the workforce can continue to support all Pennsylvanians.
